

University of Brighton

Interviews

Apprentice

If your application is successful, the employer will invite you for an interview. Different institutions have different approaches. You may have a traditional interview with a panel made up of admissions team member/s and relevant professionals from the University. Or you could have a mini multiple interview (MMI), which consists of several question stations, each with a different focus. Your interview could be:

- face to face
- with a panel
- over the phone
- online - for example, on Skype or Zoom

In common with all health professions, podiatry requires a range of core skills, for example:

Excellent people and communication skills. Listening as well as talking

The ability to form good working relationships with clients of all ages and backgrounds. This might involve empathy as well as the ability to motivate people

Creative and adaptable, with the ability to create tailored programmes for individuals and to work in groups

Good teamworking skills and the ability to work alone

You can also expect to be questioned on the NHS and its values, your work experience/work shadowing, and your knowledge of the relevant profession and your commitment to it.

To help you prepare, there is excellent guidance from the UCAS website:

<https://www.ucas.com/alternatives/apprenticeships/apprenticeships-england/apprenticeship-interviews>

Or from the National Careers Service:

<https://nationalcareers.service.gov.uk/careers-advice/interview-adv>